TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are annexed to the Declaration of Independence, the periculous occasion which demanded the exertion of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world, and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprises of man, none has awakened into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our grate-tude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptible rights of humanity by the mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors; and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world;
their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—
Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration.
Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Militaries interrupted the sleeps of Themistoles; and Theseus, hearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his but the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens, with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.
I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 300 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontispiece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved facsimiles of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law.
Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

From the Washington City Gazette.

LAWS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The following article is from the pen of a respectable and intelligent correspondent. It attracts the public attention to a very important subject. We shall express our own opinion upon the topic hereafter. The moment when Congress take up the code for final consideration will be the proper time to examine its provisions.

From a Correspondent.

We understand that the judges of the circuit court for this district, and Mr. Jones, the District attorney, have lately been very assiduously engaged in preparing their report of a code of laws applicable to the situation of this district, in pursuance of the act of Congress of April 29, 1816; and of the resolution passed by Congress at the last session. It will be remembered, that in December last, Chief Justice Cranch reported a code, which was ordered to be printed. From the industry and sound judgment that it exhibited, it fully answered the public expectation. But the committee of congress to whom the report was referred, considering that the adoption of a code, embracing so many important and novel principles, required long and careful deliberation, again referred the matter to the bench of judges and the district attorney—and, from the assiduity with which they have undertaken the discharge of this duty, we trust we shall soon have it in our power to congratulate our fellow-citizens on the adoption of a clear, consistent, and rational code of statute law, for this district.

The attention of the judges has been particularly turned to the modification and modelling of such of the British statutes and Maryland acts of assembly as are applicable to this district, and to the due administration of justice, by the establishment of a course of practice in actions at law, that will more speedily and effectually ensure redress, and diminish litigation. The present insolvent laws will also receive such a modification as will be more favorable both to the debtor and the creditor.

Whatever may be the doubts entertained of the possibility and advantage of codification, on which so much has been lately written, we cannot avoid thinking that every step taken to embody the laws, to render them more easy of access and comprehension to those whom they are to govern, must be an improvement.

From the St. Louis Enquirer, Sept. 29.

THE EXPEDITION TO THE UPPER MISSOURI.
Mr. Peter Kerr left Mammel's Fort seven miles below the Council Bluffs, on the 10th instant, and arrived at St. Louis on the 23d.

On the 11th, he met the Western Engineer, Major Long and party, 12 miles below the mouth of the river Plate, ascending. He confirms the account of a robbery committed on some of the gentlemen attached to this boat, by a band of Panis Indians.

On the 12th, he met col. Atkinson 175 miles below the Council Bluffs. The rifle regiment and the 6th infantry were in company, under the command of col. Atkinson, ascending in a number of keel boats, in good health and spirits, and expected to be at the Council Bluffs in 12 days, that is to say, on the 24th inst. None of col. Johnson's steam boats were in company.

On the 14th Mr. Kerr passed Martin cantonment (Cow Island) saw there the steam boat Expedition, empty, and preparing to fall back, her cargo having been transferred to keels. Martin cantonment was abandoned, except by a subaltern and 30 men, who waited the arrival of an empty keel boat to take the remnant of the lading of the steam boat Expedition.

On the 16th passed the steam boat Johnson, 25 miles above Fort Osage, lying to, something out of order.

On the 17th, 18th, and 19th, met ten or a dozen keel boats above Boop's Lick, ascending with provisions for the troops.

On the 20th, passed the steam boat Jefferson, empty, and lying upon the rocks high and dry, 4 miles below the mouth of the Great Osage.

It is now certain that the troops have left the steam boats and gone on in keels, and that they will arrive (have arrived in all probability) at the Council Bluffs in time to shelter themselves before the commencement of winter, and to accomplish all the views of the government for the present summer.

Mr. Forsyth, U. S. agent on the Upper Mississippi, arrived in town a few days ago from the Falls of St. Anthony.

We understand from him that he left Prairie du Chien in company with Colonel Leavenworth and a detachment of the 5th, early in August, and arrived at the mouth of the St. Peters, just under the Falls, on the 24th of the same month. Colonel Leavenworth established himself on the spot indicated by Gen. (then Lieut.) Pike, and immediately commenced the necessary works for the shelter and protection of the troops.

On the way up, the detachment halted at the different Sioux villages, by all of whom they were well treated.

Many Indians from the borders of the river St. Pierre, came down to the Falls while Mr. Forsyth remained there, all of whom conducted themselves peaceably, and expressed satisfaction at the arrival of the troops and the establishment of the military post.

COURSE OF EXCHANGE.

That merchants and traders at a distance may know the rates for shewing bank notes at Baltimore, we offer the following brief notice of the value of paper, as it is differently marked, engraved and signed.

United States' bank and all its branches—ran.

New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Vermont bank notes—Boston at 1, the rest, generally, at from 2 to 3 per cent. discount, except those of Connecticut, payable in New-York, which are at par.

New-York city, and the country notes which are depositable in the city banks, par. Jacob Barker's, 30 per cent. disc.; Hudson, 80; do. 'receivables,' 20; Catskill aqueduct co. 50; M'Kean's & Myers' notes, 60; Utica insurance, 12; Ontario bank, 15 to 20; Jefferson county bank, 50; Cherry Valley, 10; all the rest pretty good—regulated by the market at New-York.

New Jersey.—Most of the banks in this state are nearly at par, or may be passed off as such—the rest at 2 or 3 dis.

Pennsylvania.—All the Philadelphia notes, par. The good country notes, 2 1/2 to 3 dis.; Pittsburg, 5; the rest at uncertain prices, or at no price at all, and too tedious to detail.

Delaware.—All good except the Commercial bank and bank at Laurel—the former at 7 per cent. dis. the latter at from 50 to 60.

Maryland.—City bank of Baltimore, 10 dis.; Caroline, do.; Elkton, Somerset & Worcester, Port Deposit, and Cumberland, at no price. Frederick county, Havre de Grace and Annapolis at par. The rest pretty good—the worst at 4 per cent. dis.

Virginia.—The old banks, 1 1/2 dis.; Bank of the Valley, from 1 1/2 to 2 dis.; no other notes in the market.

North Carolina, 6 1/2 to 7 dis.; South Carolina, 2; Georgia, 3; Louisiana, no demand, but 1 1/2, if sold.

Ohio—the best, the specie paying banks, at 10! Cincinnati, &c. from 20 to 40. Some as much as 50 to 60 dis.

Kentucky and Tennessee—old banks, if in demand, at from 15 to 20 per cent. dis.; new banks of both states, and bank of Nashville, not to be sold at all.

District of Columbia—generally, 1 disc.; Mechanics' & Franklin banks of Alexandria, 50 or 60 dis.; Merchants' bank—6 cents for 1000 dollars!!!

The rates of discount on much of the paper above mentioned, oftentimes varies several per cent. in the course of a week. The brokers assume the power and virtually possess it, of causing such fluctuations at pleasure. The above were their rates on the 1st of this month.

(Niles's Register.)

New-York, Nov. 11.

Yesterday the president and directors of the American Insurance Company, declared a dividend of TEN per cent. on the capital stock, for the last six months. This company was established since the peace, and has since declared dividends to the amount of one hundred and four per cent; and we are informed, has a surplus capital of nearly 40 per cent.

From the National Intelligencer.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES.

The result of the late meeting of the Stockholders in this institution has been properly made public, contrary to the usage of banks; because it is one in which not only very many individuals (say from three to five thousand) are personally interested, but in which the community is deeply concerned, by the pervading influence which the transactions of that institution must have on the trade and business of the whole community. It was due to the government also, which is not at all represented in the general meetings of the stockholders, (tho' it is sufficiently represented in the direction of the Bank,) that the means should be afforded to the representatives of the people, of judging how far its affairs had been administered with a view to the public interest. In such an institution, nothing should be concealed; and nothing has been withheld which it was important to know. There are many particulars not disclosed, the publication of which might have gratified curiosity; but the results of the investigation are fully and fairly before the public.

The general committee, in their report, appear carefully to have avoided retrospection even so far as to give a historical view of the operations of the bank. Their object seems to have been, not to inflame jealousies or animosities, by making comparisons of the past and present administrations of the affairs of the bank; but to examine into its present condition; to ascertain the amount of its losses; to designate the apparent causes of them; and to present their view of the present prospects of the institution.

The amount of the losses at one of the branches of the bank, particularly designated, have been enormous, and have been occasioned in a manner which, we are persuaded, would have been more satisfactorily elucidated, but for certain prosecutions depending in Baltimore, connected with these transactions. The other losses, estimated at 1,300,000, sustained at the parent bank, and its numerous branches, are, we venture to assert, of less amount than has been sustained during the same period, by any bank south of the Hudson, in proportion to its capital. Every bank calculates on some loss from bad debts, &c. to be repaired out of the surplus of profits. It is the impression of some, moreover, that the general committee has erred on the safe side in its estimate of the amount of loss, and that the reality will probably fall short of the estimate. Even the less sustained at Baltimore, of about twenty per cent. on the total amount of its discounts, great as it is, is not without example in other institutions; and, we suspect, there is now many a bank in the full tide of business, the officers of which would be glad to be able to render to the stockholders as favorable an account of its debts.

We believe, that the effect of the report on the stock of the bank ought to be favorable. It is evident, from what appears, that notwithstanding the losses sustained, the bank is now in nearly as good a condition as when it commenced operations, and its stock ought to be as valuable. If its stock was then worth, on calculation, 130, it is now worth 120. But in truth, the stock never was intrinsically worth what it has sold for—say 150 dollars per share of 100 dollars. It never can be in the power of the Bank of the U. States, fettered as it is by restrictions, and burthened with onerous impositions, to make dividends to justify any such price. Upon a very moderate estimate, comparing it with the product of other investments of money, the intrinsic value of this stock is now estimated at 110. It never was worth much more in this country; though, had no the bank met with extraordinary losses, it would probably have commanded a higher price in the European market.

When we call to mind the impossibility of engaging the capital of the bank in business otherwise than gradually, and of course the impracticability, for a year or two after its organization, of realizing a profit on the whole of it; the expenses of putting the branches into operation; the great expense of importing specie; the cost of the bank building, and of the purchase of buildings for the branches; the considerable bonus payable to the government; and a variety of other items of expenditure, which might be added to this account, we are almost led to believe, that the bank began so early to divide its profits, that a suspension of dividend would necessarily have taken place, had no losses been sustained. When we add to this the more recent necessity, from the drain of specie for the East-India trade, that the discounts of the bank should be curtailed, and its business contracted; we shall find that, so far from the state of the bank being worse, it is better than could have been expected.

It is now apparent, that to the system of curtailment from which the community has suffered, and of which it has loudly complained, the bank is indebted for its salvation. The breakers were already in sight when the sails were taken in. But, the shoals are now passed; the vessel is no longer in danger; and, if the canvas be spread, there is no doubt of her speedily regaining her lost ground. If it is in the power of the bank, it will be its true policy, as well as to the great advantage of the community, to extend its business considerably beyond its present range. It is the opinion of many, that the bank might be able, without danger, so far to enlarge the sphere of its operations, as at this time to be able to discount all the unquestionably good transaction paper offered to it, and thus realize a greater profit to the stockholders. This is a point, however, on which there is much difference of opinion.

We have made these few remarks on this subject, because we regard it as of great national importance. We consider the bank as the bulwark which obstructs the inroad of an overwhelming flood of vitiated paper currency, which will prostrate the only standard of value on which the least reliance can be placed. It is a minor consideration, that the government is interested in the stock of the Bank; and even the consideration of its importance to the fiscal operations of the government becomes subordinate in comparison with that first referred to.

It is with great satisfaction, therefore, that by the Report which has been made, the credit of the Bank appears to be placed beyond the reach of the breath of suspicion; and it is shown, that, with regard to its present administration, it is prudent almost to excess, if in prudence there can be excess. The suggestion which is made, that no dividend ought to be made until the estimated loss is more than repaid, is such as might be expected from the standing and honorable character of the gentlemen who composed the general committee.

The report too, establishes conclusively that the Bank has been so administered as to produce important benefits to every part of the community, except the Stockholders. It has restored specie payments, and maintained them; it has afforded that aid to the fiscal operations of the government to which the state institutions were becoming every day, less and less competent; it has sustained the local Banks by every means in its power—by indulgence as to time, by advances and loans of specie; and it has considerably aided the commerce and industry of the nation. The errors and vices in the administration of the Bank, or any of its branches, are, justly chargeable to the frailty of our Nature, and not to the Institution, which has been the suffering victim of them, at the same time that public opinion has held it responsible for them.

NAKES.

"If I am not mistaken," (says the governor of Vermont, in his address to the legislature of that state, at the opening of its present session.) "If I am not mistaken, in those states where the banks are the most numerous and the means of credit the most easy, the recent cry of the scarcity of medium, and its consequent distresses, have been the most heard and felt. Although I wish equal privileges to be extended to every part of the state, yet I am confident that a multiplicity of incorporated banks, in a state will prove injurious to the community, if not ruinous to each other."

MORALITY.

The following Essay is from the 5th No. of the Plough Boy, edited by S. Southwick, Esq. of Albany, (N. Y.)

"Wine is a noxious, strong drink is raging, and who ever is deceived thereby, is not wise." These are the words of a writer whose views embraced the whole economy of life, and whose experience had taught him all that was wise in practice, as his genius of inspiration had enabled him to perceive all that was virtuous in precept. We are not, however, about to write an essay against drunkenness, as the words we have quoted would seem to import. The confirmed drunkard is, perhaps in most cases, beyond the reach of reform; and the task of redeeming him from his dreadful malady is more hopeless than the sleep of the grave. The vice of which we are speaking, is a disorder of the appetite, more easily prevented than cured. It frequently approaches by slow degrees, and originates in small deviations from correct & steady habits. It was justly observed in a late newspaper paragraph, that "while you are labouring to curtail the vices of the grog-shop, would it not be well to remember the side-board." This is an excellent hint, and strikes at the root of a practice which frequently leads to the vice of drunkenness: a practice, the existence of which we have long regretted; we mean the custom of inviting all, who happen to step in our houses, to make a friendly call, or dissipate an idle moment, to drink ardent spirits.

On these occasions, "will you take a glass of wine?" is the first salutation after being seated. If the question be negatived, it is renewed as politely in the shape of a persuasion: "Pray do not refuse; a little will not hurt you, it will do you good."

"A little will not hurt you." These words have done more mischief among mankind, than perhaps all the artillery of Satan besides. "A little taste of the forbidden fruit," said the arch tempter to the mother of mankind, "will not hurt you." It will on the contrary open your eyes to behold hidden mysteries. The unsuspecting fair believed too readily, and we all know and feel the consequences. It is indeed, as every person of observation knows, by "little" and "little," that every species of human frailty gains upon its victims, till it subdues their mental fortitude, and bids defiance to their noblest resolutions. A "little wine" will rarely hurt one—but that "little," too often repeated becomes intemperance; intemperance produces idleness, confusion of affairs, debt and embarrassment, and these lead directly, if not to fraud and embezzlement, to penury, want, and the limits of a jail.—Here is a pretty climax, indeed; of human frailty and weakness, all for the want of a little fortitude and firmness to refuse at first to accept a little sideboard hospitality. In short, a little sleep in the morning—a little punch at noon—a little wine and bitters before dinner—a little more wine and a little rest after dinner—a little visiting, and a little more drink at night; all these soon wind up the industrious concerns of the plough boy, the mechanic, the merchant, or professional character; and leave them alike, the victims, not of a little but of a great deal of wretchedness. We beseech the plough boys of all others, to avoid these LITTLE beginnings, which lead to such GREAT evils, and such wretched ends. Instead of indulging the freaks of appetite, and hankering after luxuries, which never fail to destroy the wholesome habits essential to their prosperity in life, let them cling to those habits as a shipwrecked mariner would to the last plank of his ill-fated barque. It was said by the illustrious Edmund Burke, in the very meridian of his splendor, that he made his dinners of the simplest food, and that he would invite such men as Pitt, Fox, and other shining characters of that day, to dine with him upon a half of mutton and turnips, and a bottle of two of mild claret. It was "the feast of reason and the flow of soul," and not the indulgence of sensual, irrational appetite, that was sought by those illustrious champions of England's fame and glory. Such was likewise the temperance and frugality of our FRANKLIN, whose immortality is built upon the same basis as that of the BURKES and PITTS of old England.

From such examples let us learn to despise and banish luxury and dissipation from our houses and our festive boards; and let the Plough Boys be the first to pursue this path of domestic virtue and economy. Let them never sicken at the labor which they cannot avoid, because Providence has decreed it, as the most salutary means of human subsistence. Let them rather rejoice that they have always labor enough, if they choose to pursue it, to keep the Devil from catching them idle, that he may draw them into his snares of destruction.

CINCINNATUS, the Roman Patriot, weeding in his turnip garden; BURKE, the British Cicero, dining upon a mutton chop; and FRANKLIN, one of the saviors of America, fasting upon bread and water in a printing office! What illustrious examples for modern Plough Boys! H. H. J.

COMETS.

A German Astronomer, of the name of Hayer, has recently published a new theory of these curious luminaries. He maintains, that the body is composed of water, and that the tail consists of solar rays refracted through this medium;—that an impure atmosphere collects around it, which is dispersed by approximation to the sun; and that when a comet comes near the earth, it purifies the air, and promotes vegetation.

Another Astronomer, M. Olbus, of Bremen, has calculated, that, in 68,000 years, a comet will approach the earth as near as the moon; that in 4,000,000 it will come within 7,770 geographical miles; and if its power of attraction be equal to the moon, will cause a rise of the ocean of 15,000 feet, which will make a deluge. But what is still more frightful, the same philosopher says that in 320,000,000 years, a comet will come in contact with the earth, and produce consequences, which can only be imagined. [Phil. Union.]

ELEGANT CUT GLASS URN,
Designed for the President's House at Washington is now in Philadelphia at the store of Messrs. Fletcher and Gardiner, No. 130, Chestnut street.

This elegant specimen of rich Cut Glass which was exhibited at the Brighton Show of domestic Manufactures, came from the New-England Glass factory at Lechemere's Point. It is broader and twenty pounds heavier than either the celebrated London or Bristol Bowl, which has been so much admired in England, and is far richer and deeper in the cutting, and more beautiful in form, and symmetrical in proportion. It is valued at 500 dollars, and is now on its way to Washington City. It is an Urn, and consists of three pieces, the base, the bowl, and the cover, weighing 45 pounds, & intended for the central ornament of a table. The cutting on the foot, is in arched scollops, flutings, and deep splits, with prismatic rings and splits beneath—the bowl round the bottom in the language of the manufacturer has raised diamonds, and deep sun rings; and on the body there are still deeper strawberry diamonds, rings, and arched scollops; the cover has a chevron cut from the solid glass, edge arched scollops, prismatic rings with splits beneath; rows of strawberry diamonds and head; ranged and raised diamonds. The model of the Bowl is considered to exceed in elegance and proportion, thickness any article of the glass kind made in Europe: those who are acquainted with the difficulty and skill required to bring to perfection so large a specimen of glassware, can judge of its excellence; the cutting must strike the eye agreeably from its perfect accuracy, and it will bear the most critical examination.

It weighed sixty-four pounds before the cutting.

35,519 bbls. flour inspected in Richmond, for the quarter ending Oct. 31.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Heplurn & Dundas. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give fifty dollars if apprehended in the District, or the above reward for apprehending him out of the District, so that I get him again.

ROMULUS RIGGS.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling.

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case; and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or dissatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.
